LONGFELLOW.

Some of His Characteristic Utterances on Life and Death.

No more! Oh, how majestically mournful are these words! They sound like the roar of the wind through a forest of pines.

Lay thy soft hand upon my brow and cheek,
O Peaceful Sleep! until from pain released
I breathe again uninterrupted breath!
Ah, with what subtle meaning did the Greek
Call thee the lesser mystery at the feast
Whereof the greater mystery is Death!

The air is full of farewells to the dying,
And mournings for the dead.

Age is opportunity no less
Than youth itself, though in another dress,
And as the evening twilight fades away
The sky is filled with stars invisible by day.

Not in the clamor of the crowded streets,
Not in the shouts and plaudits of the throng,
But in ourselves, are triumph and defeat.

Oh what a glory does this world put on,
For him who with a fervent heart goes forth
Under the bright and glorious sky, and looks
On duties well performed and days well spent!

O, though oft depressed and lonely,
All my fears are laid aside,
If I but remember only
Such as these have lived and died.

All are scattered now and fled,
Some are married, and some are dead;
And when I ask with throbs of pain,
"Ah, when shall they all meet again?"
As in the days long since gone by,
The ancient timepiece makes reply,—
"Forever—never!"
Never—forever!"

There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there!
There is no fireside, howso'er defended,
But has one vacant chair!

We have no title deeds to house or lands;
Owners and occupants of earlier dates
From graves forgotten stretch their dusky hands,
And hold in mortmain still their old estates.

The spirit world around this world of sense
Floats like an atmosphere, and everywhere
Wafts through these earthly mists and vapors dense
A vital breath of more ethereal air.

Our little lives are kept in equipoise
By opposite attractions and desires;
The struggle of the instinct that enjoys
And the more noble instinct that inspires.

These perturbations, this perpetual jar
Of earthly wants and aspirations high
Come from the influence of an unseen star,
An undiscovered planet in our sky.

And as the moon from some dark gate of cloud
Throws o'er the sea a floating bridge of light
Across whose trembling planks our fancies crowd
Into the realms of mystery and night—

So from the world of spirits there descends
A bridge of light, connecting it with this,
O'er whose insteady floor, that sways and bends
Wander our thoughts above the dark abyss.

Into the Silent Land!
Ah! who shall lead us thither?
Clouds in the evening sky more darkly gather,
And shattered wrecks lie thicker on the strand.

Who leads us with a gentle hand

Thither, O thither,

Into the Silent Land?

Into the Silent Land!

To you, ye boundless regions

Of all perfection! Tender morning visions

Of beauteous souls! The future's pledge and band

Who in life's battle firm doth stand,

Shall bear hope's tender blossoms

Into the Silent Land!

O Land! O Land!
For all the broken hearted!

The mildest herald by our fate allotted

Beacons, and with inverted torch doth stand,

To lead us with a gentle hand

To the land of the great Departed,

Into the Silent Land!

SPRING.

Sweet blow white lilles.
Red blow the roses,
Pink blow peach blossoms—
Loud blow your noses.

—Lampton.

PROF. MEHAN has advanced the theory that the absence of trees upon the American prairies is due to annual fires, it being known that such fires were caused by the Indians during a long period. Herbaceous plants and annuals may increase their area yearly, while trees were never able to get beyond the line to which the annual fires extended.

Pillar Saints.

Among the freaks that have possessed men of a rigid order of faith in times past, nothing is so remarkable as that of anchorites who, with a view to separating themselves more completely from earth and fellow men, took up their abode on the tops of pillars, where they stood for years without coming down, exposed to all the variations of climate and weather. This happened chiefly in Syria, and they were known as Pillar Saints. The earliest and most celebrated of them was a monk who lived in the beginning of the fifth century, known as Simon of Stylite, from stylus, a column. He had lived secluded in a monastery nine years, without leaving his narrow cell, when it appeared to him that he was enjoying too much luxury for one of his pious profession, and that his example was therefore bad. So he built a pillar, on the top of which, only three feet in diameter, he took up his position. But this didn't suit him, owing perhaps to the ease with which he could stand there after getting a little accustomed to it, and he removed from pillar to post, each pillar a little higher than its predecessor, until finally he attained an altitude of about sixty feet, on a pillar, where he spent thirty-seven years of his life. To increase the severity of the ordeal, he wore an iron chain around his neck all this while, and during the recitation of his prayers bent his body so that his forehead touched his feet. It is said that on account of an ulcer that had formed on one of his legs, he was compelled during the last year of his life to stand on one foot, and that in this position he died, aged 72 years. How he got his nourishment up there is a mystery to us if it wasn't to him. So great was his fame that crowds of people flocked to see him, even from foreign countries. It is rarely that a man maintains such a prominent position for so many years without any let down.

Movements of Leaves.

Leaves, Mr. Darwin says, when they go to sleep, move either upward or downward; or in the case of the leaflets of compound leaves, forward—that is, towards the apex of the leaf or backwards, that is, towards its base; or again, they may rotate on their own axis without moving either upwards or downwards; but in almost every case the plane of the blade is so placed as to stand nearly or quite vertically at night. Moreover, the upper surface of each leaf, and more especially of each leaflet, is often brought into close contact with that of the opposite one, as the upper surfaces appear to require more protection than the lower. The evil effects which result if sleeping leaflets be prevented from pressing their upper surfaces together, so as to protect them from radiation, were well seen in experiments of Mr. Darwin, in which he pressed down the leaflets of oxalis, marsilia, etc., so that they could not bring their upper surfaces into contract; the result was that the leaves were killed. Thus of twenty-four leaves of marsilia extended horizontally, exposed to the zenith and to obstructed radiation, twenty were killed and one injured, whilst a relatively very small proportion of the leaves which had been allowed to go to sleep with their leaflets vertically dependent were killed or injured. Mr. Darwin noticed that the difference in the amount of dew on the pinned-open leaflets and on those which had gone to sleep was generally conspicuous, the latter being sometimes absolutely dry, whilst the leaflets which had been horizontal were coated with large beads of dew. Another fact observable was that when leaves were kept motionless they are more liable to injury than when they were slightly waved about by the wind, and thus got a little warmed by the surrounding air.

TERMS.—The EVENING BULLETIN is published daily, and served free of postage at 6 cents per week; 25 cents per month; 75 cents per three months; $1.50 per six months, and $3 per year, payable in advance.

THE EVENING BULLETIN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION IN THIS CITY, CHESTER AND ABERDEEN, OHIO, THAN ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN MAYSVILLE.

THERE were 175 new cases of small pox at Cincinnati last week.

A MAJORITY of the tariff commission it is thought, will be avowed protectionists.

SIX thousand Swedish and Norwegian emigrants have sailed from Hull for the United States.

THE Ways and Means Committee are emphatically in favor of the bill limiting the term of collectors to four years.

GUITEAU seems to recognize the gravity of the situation as far as the law is concerned and now rests his hopes in executive clemency.

THE amount appropriated by the river and harbor bill this year, will exceed fifteen millions of dollars, a decided increase over last year's appropriation.

THE North Elkhorn sales of fine blooded stock came off Monday at Lexington, thirty-eight yearlings were sold at an average price of $724, netting $27,530.

THE tariff commission bill turns over to an irresponsible body of men, a duty which should be performed by congress, it is filibustering scheme of the republicans.

THE House Committee on Education and Labor has reported a bill appropriating $10,000,000 a year for five years for schools, to be apportioned among the States and Territories on the basis of illiteracy.

THE Commercial says the speech of Col. Jacob at Lexington brought some Democrats to reflection. That speech always does bring some Democrats to reflection, but it is decidedly unfavorable to Colonel Jacob.—Argus.

HON. RICHARD REED, of Mt. Sterling, candidate for Judge of the Superior Court of this district is spending a few days in this. His chances for the nomination are good from what we learn. The only opposition he has is Judge O'Hara, of Covington.

MR. BOBB, a philanthropic member of the New York legislature, has introduced a bill entitled "An act to promote virtue." Mr. Bobb's plan to bring about this desirable consummation is to permit women to vote. In view of the fact that there are many instances on record of men whose virtue has not been promoted by exercising the right of suffrage, the plan does not appear feasible.

THE Courier-Journal says: The arrangements for the lease of the Richmond branch of the Kentucky Central have finally been consummated. The lease is perpetual one and the annual rental is $24,000. The Kentucky Central, in order to make connection with the Knoxville extension, will now have only to build from Winchester to Richmond. By the terms of the lease the rates are to be the same from Richmond to Louisville as to Cincinnati.

Sales of Land.

The following changes in the ownership of land have been recorded at the office of the Clerk of the County Court since our last report:

Robert Perrine and wife to H. Wall Snoot 2 acres and 18 poles of land on Tuckahoe Ridge; consideration, $500.

S. S. Riley and wife to David Hechinger, undivided half interest in the slaughter house property below the city; consideration, $4,000.

W. P. Ray to J. T. Sult 18 poles of land near Sardis; consideration, $60.

Sarah Williamson to L. S. Day, one acre of land in Rectorville; consideration, $200.

Kentucky Fairs.

The dates for the following fairs of this state have been agreed upon:

Richmond, August 8th.

Sharpsburg, August 15th.

Cynthiana, August 22d.

Lexington, August 29th.

Paris, September 5th.

Falmouth, September 12th.

Maysville, September 19th.

THE Methodist Conference at Nashville, elected five additional Bishops—Alpheus W. Wilson, of the Baltimore Conference; Dr. C. Franberry, Professor in Vanderbilt University; Dr. A. T. Haygood, of Georgia; Rev. R. K. Hargrave, of Tennessee, and Dr. Linetus Parker, of New Orleans.

THE Maysville Trotting Club yesterday refused a representative of a Maysville paper the privilege of taking notes from the trotting record book. A Chicago party, he was informed, had bought the exclusive privilege. This is about as mean and illiberal as the rule to exclude Maysville newspapers from the ground. The Trotting Association under the present management does not deserve the encouragement of Maysville people.

Hon. Clark Bascom, of Bath county, and Col. A. W. Hamilton, of Montgomery, are here attending the races. It is rumored that Mr. Bascom will be an aspirant in the race for congress, next fall. Col. Hamilton is the largest tobacco grower in the blue grass region.

WAR DECLARED.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

THE earliest company for insuring against fire was instituted in London in 1696, and was called the "Hand in Hand Fire Office."

KENTUCKY adopted the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall," at the time of its admission into the Union, June 1, 1792.

JOHN OF FINLAND, on his return from Sweden, brought the first coach into that country toward the end of the sixteenth century.

IN the spring of 1682 William Penn with eleven others purchased East Jersey. He embarked for that colony in September of the same year.

MOROCCO binding for books came into use in 1444, being introduced by Grolier, who was the Treasurer and Ambassador of the King of France.

IN the seventh century Paulus Aigineta defined sugar as "the Indian salt, in color and form like common salt, but in taste and sweetness like honey."

THE honey-bee is of Asiatic origin. From there it followed the course of empire, spread over Europe, and from Europe it was imported at an early day into America, where it is now found wild in great numbers and at a long distance from human habitations.

THE national-bank currency lost or destroyed by accident is not "clear gain to the banks." The banks deposit bonds to secure circulation. The bonds cannot be returned unless the banks return all the circulation they received, "or other good money to the same amount."

"POTTER'S FIELD" was the name given to the land bought by the chief priests with the bribe of thirty pieces of silver given to Judas, the story of which is given in Matthew, chapter xxii. The name has ever since been applied to that portion of a cemetery that is given gratuitously by the public for the burying of strangers.

THE Kremlin at Moscow is the ancient fortress of the city. It was built by the Czar Ivan, 1333; rebuilt and enclosed with stone walls by Dimitri IV., 1467; two convents were established in it in 1393. Napoleon took up his quarters there, Sept. 15, 1812. He left it Oct. 19, and ordered it to be destroyed; and it was blown up by Marshal Mortier, and a great part destroyed, Oct. 20, 1812.

THERE was an attempt made in 1774 to remove "Plymouth Rock" from its bed to a place in the city where it would command general attention, but it fell and broke apart while being raised so that only a part of it was removed; the other was again imbedded in its original ground. In 1880 the piece removed was returned to its position with the other. A granite canopy has, in recent years, been erected over the rock to protect it.

MADAME TOUSSAUND, of wax-figure fame, died June 10, 1850, in her 90th year. She was born at Berne, Switzerland, but left there when 6 years old for Paris, where she became a pupil of her uncle, M. Curtius, artist of Louis XIV. She taught Princess Elizabeth to draw and model, and, during the revolution in France, was employed to model the heads of most of the revolutionary leaders. She went to England in 1802, and from that time until her death was occupied in gathering the noted figures which are now on exhibition in London. The collection has been added to by her daughter and granddaughter, the latter being the present possessor.

"How beautiful the dome of heaven this evening!" said Angelica, as she leaned heavily on his arm. "The stars seem to look down upon us—" "Oh, yes," said the practical John, "it is impossible for them to look up to us, you know. They cawn't." Sudden check to an evening's fill of most delightful sentimentality.

A LOTISVILLE boy stole his mother's mocking-bird and sold it to a man who had just lost one, taking the dead bird in exchange. The good lady was overwhelmed at the death of her pet and gave him a tearful burial, at which her son, the money-jingling in his pocket, assisted with great solemnity.
